

► Play fine arts

THE ART OF 'PAPER SHREDDERS'

Andrzej Zielinski, the Yale-trained Kansas City artist known for his luscious paintings of laptops and ATM machines, will have his first one-person show in his hometown this month.

And he's pumped, after a mention in Time Out New York of his inclusion in a recent group show, "Organic Geometry," at Nicole Klagsbrun Gallery in New York.

The Dolphin gallery, 1600 Liberty St., opens "Andrzej Zielinski: Paper Shredders" with a reception from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday.

The gallery also opens "Mike Erickson: what you see is what you get" and "Laura Berman: Re: Collection." Admission is free.

■ Everyone's welcome to join the Young Friends of Art at its Second Friday Happy Hour Lonely Hearts Club from 6 to 8 p.m. in Lens 2 of the Bloch Building at the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art.

Specialty cocktails, priced at $4 for members and $6 for nonmembers, may help you work up the courage to participate in a planned "Happy Hour" activity to help you find your match."

"Blue Paper Shredder" (2008) is part of Andrzej Zielinski's new show at the Dolphin gallery.

Rumor has it that the game will involve matching cards with images of artworks on them. If you don't like the company, you can take solace in the art.

| Alice Thorson, The Star